MEET THE BOARD

Sarah Yao Schutzman, CFA
Managing Partner
Providence Heights Capital Management LLC

CWIM Co-Founder, President & CEO
CFA Society Indianapolis
Board Director, Philanthropy Co-Chair

I am a first-generation Chinese immigrant and hedge fund manager. Professionally, I built my career investing in global equities and debt, across developed and emerging markets. I have seen firsthand what capital and access to capital can do. I have also experienced its personal impact, as a recipient of capital— when an Iranian immigrant with her first US research grant took a chance on my father, and gave our family a future.

My godmother passed away this summer— a survivor of the Iranian Revolution who became a Pharm D., Ph.D., and celebrated leader of the Yale University School of Medicine. Her sharp wit and fearless spirit were only surpassed by her generous heart. Her life and character demonstrated that “different” can be a great strength, and empathy is not a weakness. I am an extension of her legacy.

So to me, inclusion is both an opportunity and a moral responsibility— to share capital and power. And by investing in people, we invest in our most powerful asset, and begin a virtuous cycle.

I am humbled by the leaders globally who dedicate their own blood, sweat and tears to realize this vision, alongside us. This, to me, is the heart of Collaborative WIM.

Before I immigrated to the US from Russia, my dream was to be a diplomat and to work in public policy and international relations— but then I landed in New Mexico where everything was literally foreign to me. I was 20 years old, and suddenly had to create a new dream, new group of friends, new education and establish a new identity in a new country. When I started my career in finance, I was told many times that I could not be promoted or hold certain positions, because I didn't have an Ivy league education or because women were not hired for those roles. Yet here I am many years later defying the odds, proving folks wrong to reach those hard-earned "firsts": becoming the first female FA Muni investment banker in the state of New Mexico (and currently still the only female), and the youngest person in our office to ever become a banker.

To me, Collaborative WIM is a place where we dare to inspire others to be in the finance industry and to let them know that they can build a career of purpose and pursue their passion. It takes a village to make an impact and to create this community (alongside grit, perseverance and everyday hustle). But if we make it matter, we will make it happen.

I didn't know a soul in New York City when I moved there to kickstart a career in investment management. A little fish in a big pond, I doubted my decision and my dreams. Just two months later, my employer was in the headlines at the onset of the global financial crisis. As "Newbie from the Midwest" with minimal industry experience and no socioeconomic relatability or credibility in the business, I was unsure if I could survive in wealth management. When I often found that the only other woman in the room was a client who, like me, yearned for eye contact at the meeting table, I knew that giving up was not an option.

Experience taught me that visualization matters, and representation is critical. The greatest return on investment comes from investing in those most underrepresented, underserved, and unseen.

I found my purpose as a female portfolio manager, investing in the financial markets and in the ideals of inclusion and equity.

CWIM Co-Founder, Director of Programming

CFA Society Los Angeles

Women's Member Community Chair

I have worked my entire career in the financial industry and absolutely love it. As the daughter of immigrants who came to America for a better life, I valued my education with utmost importance. From the moment I earned a spot on the trading floor and felt the adrenaline rush, I knew that my success as a wife, mother, and professional was heavily dependent on having the 'right' people around me. When I became a financial advisor, I was proud to become that 'right' person to help others achieve financial success.

To my disappointment I realized the industry has greatly underserved women, and even I was guilty of making compromises along my journey to adjust to a relentless and demanding culture. My passion to serve women and families looking for a better financial experience led me to start doing things differently. Today, my firm Refresh Investments is dedicated to serving professional women and their families. We offer a unique approach creating an environment for clients to comfortably discuss their issues, and help them make financial decisions with clarity and confidence.

The goal of creating an inclusive space for financial professionals is vital to the success of our community. Our clients want to see professionals that mirror their own values and perspectives. I believe we can succeed with this mission by supporting one another and continuing to educate ourselves and our allies.

Victoria (Cherkashina) Prescott, CFA
Senior Director
Capital Markets & Investor Relations at Realty Income Corporation

CWIM Co-Founder, Director of Advocacy
CFA Society San Diego
Advocacy Chair

Being an immigrant, I know first-hand how important it is to have a sense of inclusion and belonging. I have always felt that I can more easily relate to minority groups, because I know how it feels to be different, to speak a different language, to grow up in a different environment and receive a different education. Having moved to the U.S. from Kazakhstan about eight years ago, I had to build my personal and professional networks, which was not an easy task. Women generally lack the natural mentorship and sponsorship that tends to take place at the middle and senior levels, which means that they need to work so much harder to establish their own support network. I joined the Collaborative WIM to help thousands of women across the world to grow their professional networks and provide resources to help them get to the next level of their personal and professional adventures.

To me, diversity is a state of mind and a way to evolve. As human beings we grow when we learn new perspectives, experience new cultures, evaluate new view points, and we succeed when we adopt an inclusive mindset.

COLLABORATIVE WIM

WHAT

CFA Societies, FPA Chapters and industry groups around the world have joined efforts to further our shared vision of inclusion and diversity in capitalism. This collaboration was created to demonstrate the commitment of the global finance community to inclusion and diversity, and to support the advancement and development of female leaders of all backgrounds.

This is a global grassroots campaign:

- To create demand for diversity
- To empower female and diverse professionals across all facets of the finance industry
- To establish a global community to share resources, information and best practices to promote our shared vision of a better, more inclusive world

WHY

We believe that inclusion and diversity will allow our industry to achieve better investment outcomes-- but more importantly, we believe that it will better serve our diverse society.

The inclusion conversation has never been more urgent, and the reality remains that there are few female and diverse professionals in senior leadership roles. As a result, these professionals often lack the natural mentorship and sponsorship that tends to take place at the middle and senior levels, necessitating that they work harder to establish their own support network. Our global collaboration intends to fulfill that need.

Women, as the minority in the finance industry globally, are the universal diversifier.

By utilizing virtual programming and our global network, our community facilitates a geography-agnostic exchange of ideas, resources and best practices to amplify and enhance the diversity dialogue, wherever it is taking place.

We aid each professional in their personal career journey, through professional development and networking opportunities. In time, we hope that our efforts will both inspire and expand the female and diverse talent pipeline into the investment industry, as well as support their success.

Together, alongside our like-minded supporting organizations, our collaboration demonstrates the commitment of the global finance industry to inclusion and diversity, while providing high-caliber programming, cross-regional networking and professional development opportunities for our global community.

Our collaboration:

- Creates a unique CWIM Original program series that provides exceptional professional development guidance and showcases talented, diverse female leaders
- Co-markets high quality I&D programming created by our participating societies to bring added visibility to the featured speakers and the societies who host them
- Showcases and amplifies across our global platform the I&D efforts of our participating societies, to aid their success and build momentum for those initiatives at the local, regional and global level
- Offers valuable networking opportunities for our global base of finance professionals of all backgrounds
- Provides young professionals of all backgrounds access to critical mentorship and career guidance through internship opportunities and mentor programs
- Supports the development, hiring and advancement of the diverse talent pipeline

WHO

Our grassroots campaign has captured hearts and minds across the global finance network, and leaders around the world have dedicated their talents, time and endless passion to our shared vision. As of April 30, 2021, our global collaboration comprises ~80 organizations across the the US, Canada, Caribbean, EMEA and Latin America.

Together, we aim to enhance and amplify the I&D efforts of our respective societies at the local level, while sharing resources and information to build a truly global community around this important dialogue. Participating CFA Societies and FPA Chapters alongside Collaborative WIM believe that we can achieve more by working in conjunction, rather than in isolation.

OUR INAUGURAL EVENT

Our inaugural collaborative event on September 29, 2020 (hosted by the Women's Network of CFA Society Chicago) was the first in a series of programs designed to celebrate female leaders and inspire young professionals.

CFA Society and FPA members around the US joined us for a candid conversation with Stephanie Cohen, Chief Strategy Officer of Goldman Sachs.

The banner is dark blue with white and pink text. On the left, a white box contains the text 'COLLABORATIVE WOMEN IN INVESTMENT MANAGEMENT SERIES'. The main title 'M&A AND THE COVID-19 IMPACT: CRISIS OR OPPORTUNITY?' is in large white letters. Below it, 'INTERACTIVE WEBINAR' is in pink, followed by the date and time 'TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 29 5PM EST | 4PM CST | 2PM PST'. A pink arrow points to the word 'FEATURING' in white, which is followed by a circular portrait of Stephanie Cohen and her name and title 'STEPHANIE COHEN CHIEF STRATEGY OFFICER GOLDMAN SACHS'. At the bottom, a white box lists participating CFA societies and FPA chapters.

Just earlier in the day, Goldman announced that Stephanie would co-run the bank's consumer banking and wealth management practice, marking the first time in years that a woman will run a major division. In addition to being the youngest member of the firm's management committee, this move also designates Stephanie as a possible successor for the CEO role.

Stephanie shared with us everything from her reflections on her early days in Chicago as a competitive figure skater, to her most memorable investment banking deals, to her enthusiasm for the GS Accelerate and Launch with GS programs as platforms to foster innovation and diversity and the importance of establishing a personal board of directors in our respective career journeys.

Thank you for helping us to celebrate this incredible female leader in our inaugural event.
